

Raggedways is a handmade typeface inspired by the titles seen in:

- a) The trailer of “Sonic Highways”, a TV documentary series created by Dave Grohl, focusing on Foo Fighters’ upcoming eighth album which is also titled “Sonic Highways” .
- b) The movie “Sound City”, a 2013 documentary film directed by Dave Grohl, about the history of Sound City Studios.

It comes in 3 weights (Light, Regular and Bold), each of which features 88 character glyphs and 4585 manually kerned pairs. The handmade design gives it a raggedy appearance and adds a human element to it. Although ideally suited for music video and film titles, posters, logos, packaging and magazine covers, Raggedways is also suitable for the body text on print media and the web.

License Information

Raggedways Regular is free for personal use only. If you wish to use it commercially, please consider purchasing the commercial license. The cost of license isn’t marked at a fixed value - you can pay anything between $40 & $120, whatever you can afford. Upon purchasing the license, you will receive a certificate authorizing you to use it indefinitely for commercial purposes. Moreover, you will also receive the Light & Bold versions of the typeface for free to use in all your personal & commercial projects indefinitely.

If you are interested in making a purchase or have any questions about the process, please leave me an email at the address mentioned below. you can also message me on my Behance profile for the same.

Email: shrenikleto@me.com

Behance: behance.net/Shrenik18

Additional Information

Please note that you are NOT allowed to sell the font. Also, you are NOT permitted to modify its contents or this documentation. Furthermore, if you wish to feature Raggedways on your website/ blog/tumblr, you may do so by linking back to its Behance page.

I love to see how people use Raggedways in their projects. So please feel free to email me if you have used the typeface in your project and would like to share it with me.

Thank you! I hope you enjoy using the typeface in your projects.

Shrenik